The number of church and donor management software options is growing! Decades ago these programs were only available through service bureaus. That changed in the 1980s to computers running text screen and graphical window programs. Now the service bureau concept is back as hosted programs are available via the Internet, and the number of companies is dramatically increasing!

There are some great opportunities that come with Internet-accessible databases:

- They can be accessed by almost any computer that can run a browser, eliminating many computer platform restrictions.
- They can be secure, whether you host them on your internal network or they're hosted on a server in some other part of the world.
- They can allow your team—paid and volunteer—to view or modify data even when they're not at the office.
- You may be able to create custom browser pages that are modeled after your data-collection forms. This could streamline the input process when, for instance, you have new visitors that need to be entered into the database.

Why Church and Donor Management Software?

Many of the systems on the following pages match the sophisticated needs churches and ministries have. Tracking more than just names, addresses, and phone numbers, many of these also track spiritual gifts, talents, interests, attendance, contributions, family relationships, and more.

Church and ministry offices can be stressful environments due to the many deadlines that must be met by an administrative staff typically smaller than what would be found in a similar-sized secular business. Church and donor management software, if well written, can be a soothing balm in these settings. If it's powerful, capable, fast, and stable, the ministry team can rely on it to help them get the most possible work done quickly and with minimal stress.

Church Management Software Defined

Some years ago Steve Hewitt, Editor-in-Chief of Christian Computing Magazine, labeled the software category that is tailored to meet the needs of churches as Church Management Software, or CMS. There is also software to help the many ministries that aren't churches, yet need to track similar data, which we call Donor Management Software. Following is a well-researched list of all CMS and DMS providers at the time of this writing.

Though the field has narrowed considerably since we first compiled this list in 1987 (then there were 262 providers!), it is rapidly growing again. Last year we found 66, this year we found 75! To help readers focus, we narrowed the field with qualifying questions that helped us identify 56 that appear to be actively developing and marketing their software to meet church and ministry needs.

Fund Accounting

Churches and ministries exist in a unique accounting niche that most software (and even CPAs!) can't help with: fund accounting. But many of these packages can help in this area.

One of a ministry's most vulnerable areas is finance. We hear often of churches and ministries that have been embezzled by a trusted team member. One of the best protections is an accounting system that has a good audit trail that tracks the detail of every transaction and cannot be altered in any way. For these reasons, some CMS providers have chosen to write their own accounting software.

In previous years we have shown those that haven't written their own accounting software but state they interface with another accounting system like QuickBooks by putting that program's capabilities under their name with a "third party" symbol. We're no longer doing that since we are now including those systems that have chosen to participate under their own name.

Feature Chart

We've tried to give you as comprehensive a list as possible in a quick format of those database and accounting functions ministry teams request most often. We've also given you information on how to reach each provider, how long they've been serving the ministry community in this way, how many ministries they currently serve, their technical support hours, and how often they update their software. All of the information was provided by the providers.

The chart is a compilation of responses from the software providers. The "■" symbol is used on those options they said are currently available and that they provide directly. The "■" symbol is used on those needs they meet through an outside (third party) source.

Happy Hunting!

Shop wisely. We counsel all prospective buyers to do their due diligence and check with current users of the software. Ask questions like:

- Does the software do what was promised?
- Is their technical support team capable and available?
- If you were faced with the same decision today, what would you do differently?

Feel free to contact any of the providers listed. They would love to help you in your ministry. Happy hunting!
